Disclaimer:
At Tulsa Regional Tourism, our goal is to connect you with memorable experiences and to share with you our "insider tips" on why we love our city and what makes it great. While we want you to enjoy your visit to Tulsa, we also acknowledge that we are not living in normal times.

Much of the language in this Visitor's Guide is reflective of the Tulsa we've known and loved back when life was a little more normal and when we could take part in all of Tulsa's amenities to the fullest extent. We encourage you to visit and do research ahead of visiting to account for the constantly evolving circumstances brought on by COVID-19.

ABOUT THE BRAND: TULSA INSPIRES

Tulsa is alive, inspiring, imagining and inventing the future, creating new events and experiences and new ways to live, think, be. We're builders, makers, facilitators of museums and performance, folk and rock, corporate innovation and start-up invention. We're making the many arts of living accessible-the rejuvenations and activations of nature in our parks, the historic marvels of Art Deco architecture and historic Route 66, the many threads of music that run through our region, the possibilities of the next big corporate thing. All our roads lead to the excitement of creativity; we're moving ahead with imagination and intelligence into the future.

G.T. Bynum
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR

Welcome!

Tulsa was built on a pioneering spirit of high expectations that led the city to greatness. We are renewing the spirit of high expectations in Tulsa today. That spirit is reflected in Tulsa's quality of life with distinctive districts offering unique shopping and varied entertainment choices.

For architecture and art, visit downtown Tulsa, home to one of the most extensive Art Deco collections in the nation. On the northern edge of downtown are the Tulsa Arts District and Historic Greenwood District. Greenwood was known as "Black Wall Street" in the early 20th century, with the most prominent district of black-owned businesses in the United States. Despite the destruction of the area during the 1921 Race Massacre and again during urban renewal programs, this area continues to be a hub for black-owned businesses. Leading up to the centennial of the Race Massacre, public art will be featured citywide through the Greenwood Art Project - greenwoodartproject.org

For outdoor fun, stroll the winding paths along the Arkansas River and visit the riverfront park, Gathering Place, designed as a vibrant and inclusive space, blending nature with an urban setting. Since opening in 2018 and named USA Today's Best New Attraction, Gathering Place has provided Tulsans and visitors alike with space to play, relax and gather along the river.

Here in Tulsa, Route 66 is a worldwide destination and is a vital and greatly beloved part of our city's amazing history. Route 66 attractions to look for include the east and west gateways, the restored 1934 Meadow Gold neon sign, and two larger-than-life artworks: Route 66 Rising and the 20,000-pound bronze, East Meets West. Also stop at the railroad and oil derrick-themed historic Route 66 Village at 3770 Southwest Boulevard. After sunset, look for the neon-lighted signs along Route 66, boosted by a City of Tulsa neon sign grant program.

As Mayor of Tulsa, it is my honor to welcome you to our great city. Enjoy your visit and come back often to experience opportunities you won't find anywhere else.

Best regards,

G.T. Bynum
Mayor
City of Tulsa

Tulsa Safely Pandemic Partnership

For every local or visitor, Tulsa inspires something different.

Our city is entrepreneurial, creative, vibrant, active, family-friendly and historic. Tulsa is consistently recognized in national rankings, with recent ones like:

- "Top 9 most surprising cities" according to Afar Magazine
- "Top 5 unexpected U.S. foodie destination" according to Lonely Planet
- Home to the #4 best live music venue (Cain's Ballroom) per the LA Times
- "#3 best place to travel in July 2020" in Travel + Leisure
- Home to the "most important monument to visit in the U.S." according to National Geographic
- And finally, Tulsa is the only American city on TripAdvisor's Global Emerging Destinations list in 2020

As travel adapts to the Covid-19 pandemic, emphasis shifted from airplanes to road trips. Tulsa boasts an 11-mile slice of Route 66 which is being quickly developed into an international tourist destination. Be sure to check out these stop-worthy sites along the Mother Road in T-town: Buck Atom's Cosmic Curios on 66, Woody Guthrie Center, Greenwood Cultural Center, The Outsiders House Museum, Mother Road Market, The Campbell Hotel and Tulsa Fire Station 66.

Many visitors seek out Tulsa's wide-open, outdoor spaces. The United States' best new attraction is in Tulsa – don't miss the Gathering Place, a 66-acre park just a few minutes from downtown. With many others like the Tulsa Zoo, Tulsa River Parks & Trails, Tulsa Botanic Garden, Guthrie Green, Philbrook Museum & Gardens, just to name a few, Tulsa continues to offer visitors something unexpected and delightful, even in a pandemic era.

As referenced in our recent shout-out from Lonely Planet, Tulsa's food scene is pleasantly surprising to visitors. Locals regularly enjoy the new spotlight on Tulsa's food scene, resulting from the chefs relocating here to open their new restaurants. From new ones like Lowood, Peacemaker, FarmBar and Prossimo, to anchors on the scene like Juniper, Bull in the Alley and Duet, do not plan a trip to Tulsa without setting aside some quality time to taste Tulsa's best.

I think you'll love your visit to Tulsa. And when you do, take a selfie, write a review on TripAdvisor, plan your next trip back and bring your friends! We know Tulsa inspires millions of visitors every year and we look forward to welcoming you on that list.

Sincerely,

Ray Hoyt

GATHERING PLACE℠
TULSA'S RIVERFRONT PARK

Sixty-five acres of parkland in the heart of the city. Thirty-four miles of pathways and trails for walking and biking. Three-story German-engineered play towers. Two land bridges over Tulsa's Riverside Drive. One new riverfront park like no other.

This is Gathering Place.

There are more than 100 unique experiences to be enjoyed at Gathering Place. With countless activities, unique programming, special events and multiple dining options, you will be sure to have a one-of-a-kind visit unmatched by the last. From gardens and meadows to skate parks and sports courts to dozens of acres of adventure-themed playgrounds, Gathering Place offers something for children and adults of all ages.

Designed by renowned landscape architecture firm Michael Van Valkenburgh Associates, Gathering Place incorporates natural elements representative of Oklahoma's distinct ecosystems. In addition to the preservation of as many existing trees as possible during the construction phase, 5,800 evergreen and deciduous trees, as well as eight acres of meadows, were planted on site.

At $465 million, Gathering Place is the largest private gift to a public park in U.S. history. The park is funded by a combination of more than 80 corporate and philanthropic organizations. When Phase II and III are completed, the footprint of Gathering Place will be 100 acres.

Find your inspiration at Tulsa's newest place to gather with friends and family.

A NEW WAY TO PLAY!

Gathering Place is a world class riverfront park for Tulsans and Tulsa visitors offering amazing attractions and programming for all ages with no entry fee.

Designed by renowned landscape architect firm Michael Van Valkenburgh Associates, Gathering Place includes:

Peggy's Pond
Where guests can explore the park from a kayak, canoe or paddle boat.

Chapman Adventure Playground
A five-acre kingdom where imaginations can run wild as kids learn through play.

QuikTrip Great Lawn
The perfect spot for family fun and relaxation.

Skate Park
An adrenaline-filled area for those who love to skateboard and bike.

SemGroup Sports Courts
The ideal place for a game of basketball, volleyball, street soccer or hockey with easy access to Riverside Drive.

Laredo Slide Vale
Encounter a unique hillside adventure on the west side of Peggy's pond.

Swing Hill
Experience the exhilaration as you swing from a high point of the Park where you can enjoy views from all around. Provided generously by the FW Murphy Family Foundation.

CTCA Willow Beach
Enjoy the sand between your toes in the middle of Tulsa. This area boasts lovely views of Peggy's Pond.

Williams Mist Mountain
One of several elements within the Park that was designed specifically to provide an exciting and active way to beat the heat. Encounter leaping jets of water and interactive fountains.

Gathering Place programming is year-round and includes children's events, live music, artistic performances, sports-related activities and so much more. Visit gatheringplace.org to learn about the park and check out the calendar of upcoming events.

DINE AT THE PARK

Looking to eat at the park? No problem! Guests may pack their own picnic lunch or take advantage of reasonably priced eating options available on site.

Gathering Place offers a restaurant within the ONEOK Boathouse where you can dine with a view and two eateries at the Williams Lodge with close proximity to the Chapman Adventure Playground.

Vista at the Boathouse

With floor to ceiling glass walls, the Overlook deck will aesthetically enhance your full-service dining experience unlike anywhere else. Enjoy views of Peggy's Pond, downtown Tulsa and the Arkansas River, all from your dining table.

The Patio

Located on the east side of Williams Lodge, The Patio offers a quick-service dining menu where you can relax and enjoy a delightful meal outdoors under mature trees.

Redbud Cafe

Located on the bottom floor of the Williams Lodge, this special nook offers a place you can enjoy the three C's: coffee, creamery and candy.

Family-Friendly Attractions

Looking to take your family on an adventure while in town? Make memories with your loved ones at these family-friendly attractions.

TULSA ZOO

TULSAZOO.ORG

For 90 years, the Tulsa Zoo has inspired a passion for wildlife as a fun and affordable destination where families can connect.

Since 1928, the Tulsa Zoo is home to more than 400 species. Many of the animals in zoo care are rare and endangered in the wild.

Visit immersive exhibits, like the Mary K. Chapman Rhino Reserve; learn more about your favorite animals during daily keeper chats; or enjoy the scenery during a round-trip on the train.

The Tulsa Zoo, at 6421 E. 36th St. North, is open 363 days a year. Learn more about the zoo, operating hours, prices and daily activities online at tulsazoo.org, or by calling (918) 669-6600.

OKLAHOMA AQUARIUM

OKAQUARIUM.ORG

Sea Turtle Island is now open! The addition to the Oklahoma Aquarium is home to 300-pound loggerhead sea turtles, reef sharks and fish. The exhibit transports you to the look and feel of a tropical, beachfront village with three viewing levels. There is also an underwater observation station that allows you to come face-to-face with the majestic creatures.

More underwater experiences await you throughout the galleries featuring aquatic life from our oceans, rivers, lakes and streams. See the largest bull shark collection in the world through a unique walk-through tunnel and dome. Send the kids crawling through the Kelp Forest and Discovery Caves and Extreme Amazon to come face-to-face with exotic stingrays, iguanas and fish from these habitats. Get even closer by rolling up your sleeves at interactive touch and feed tanks.

The Oklahoma Aquarium is open every day except Christmas from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., with the last entry at 5 p.m.

DISCOVERY LAB

DISCOVERYLAB.ORG

The Discovery Lab provides unique programming for children in middle-school and younger geared toward developing their creativity, critical-thinking, problem-solving and collaboration skills. Guests are invited to play on a one-of-a-kind suspension tunnel and 30-foot slide made entirely out of packing tape. The WorkShop allows children and their families to play and design using "real stuff" in new and different ways. The smallest guests are not forgotten at the Children's Museum; the Discovery Zone is a designed space for sensory play and hands-on learning. The Children's Museum is open 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and 11:30a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

TULSA AIR AND SPACE MUSEUM & PLANETARIUM

TULSAMUSEUM.ORG

Go back in time and experience Tulsa's aerospace history. Enjoy the unique opportunity to look at vintage planes while also taking delight in the many interactive exhibits. Get in the "cockpit" as you fly on a jet simulation, maneuver robotic arms like an astronaut in space and more. Travel through the vast unknowns of space in the planetarium, which is the second of its kind in the world. The Tulsa Air and Space Museum & Planetarium is open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m Monday through Saturday.

TULSA BOTANIC GARDEN

TULSABOTANIC.ORG

An all-season oasis blooming in the Osage Hills just eight miles northwest of Tulsa, each spring the Garden celebrates Tulsa Botanic Blooms with over 100,000 tulips, hyacinths, daffodils and other spring flowers. The Lakeside Promenade gracefully encompasses a seven-acre lake, and the Cross Timbers Trail provides a 1.5 mile hike through the native prairie and forest.

T-Town Highlights

Whether looking for art-deco architecture or historical places across Tulsa, you can't miss these attractions.

Boston Avenue United Methodist Church

BOSTONAVENUE.ORG

With its distinctive 15-story tower reaching heavenward, Boston Avenue United Methodist Church is an exquisite example of Art Deco architecture. Completed in 1929, the building was designed by Dr. Adah Robinson and translated into architectural drawings by Bruce Goff.

Center of the Universe

In the middle of a pedestrian bridge on Boston Avenue lies an unassuming concrete circle surrounded by bricks. The average passerby would think nothing of the bizarre design, but step into the middle of the circle, say a word or two, and you'll see what all the fuss is about. Any sound you make in the circle is echoed back to you—only much louder—and any voices outside the circle sound distorted to the person on the inside. Visitors to this acoustic anomaly have dubbed the location, "The Center of the Universe," fitting for a place that defies the laws of physics. What causes this phenomenon? No one knows for sure, but it remains a popular stop for visitors ready to experience the mystery for themselves.

Circle Cinema

CIRCLECINEMA.COM

Nestled just off Route 66 and listed on the National Register of Historic Places, you will find Tulsa's own Circle Cinema. Circle Cinema is Tulsa's independent and non-profit art-house movie theatre, showing independent, foreign and documentary films. Films at Circle also include locally produced and directed films, as well as film-focused events throughout the year.

John Hope Franklin Reconciliation Park

JHFCENTER.ORG

A heart-stirring memorial of a trying portion of Tulsa's history, the JHF Reconciliation Park was built in commemoration of the 1921 Tulsa Race Riot, one of the worst civic disturbances in American history. Hope Plaza, a 16-foot granite structure with three bronze sculptures, depicts actual pictures from the 1921 riot. The Tower of Reconciliation at the center of the park is a 25-foot memorial tower that displays the early struggles of the Oklahoma Territory and the lively history of Black Wall Street in Greenwood.

Oral Roberts University Prayer Tower & Willard Elsing Museum

ELSING.ORU.EDU

Located in the center of the Oral Roberts University campus, the 200-foot Prayer Tower serves as the university's visitor center and is constructed in the likeness of a modern-day cross. A fabulous collection of rocks and minerals from around the world, the Willard Elsing Museum includes collections of Indian artifacts and Oriental art carvings.

Oxley Nature Center

OXLEYNATURECENTER.ORG

Nature is never far away in Tulsa. At the Oxley Nature Center, in Mohawk Park, you'll love exploring the trails that wind through this 800-acre wildlife sanctuary. There's nothing like a walk in the woods to enliven the senses and bring some peace to our busy lives. Be sure to enjoy all of the varied plant life and animal life that call this sanctuary home. Bird-watching excursions, like those on Saturday mornings, are popular, so bring your binoculars and your desire to spot a rare species or two.

Guided tours are available by appointment.

From business retreats, conferences and training sessions to weddings, ropes courses, zip line, special events and family reunions, POSTOAK provides guests enriching experiences and lifelong memories.

TULSA GARDEN CENTER, LINNAEUS TEACHING GARDEN & MUNICIPAL ROSE GARDEN

TULSAGARDENCENTER.COM

As you stroll among more than 9,000 rose bushes in the All-American Rose Society Test Garden, the aroma is mesmerizing. Woodward Park—a wooded 34 acres in the heart of Tulsa boasting azaleas, tulips, dogwoods, redbuds and flower and herb gardens—attracts nature lovers all year long. At the Tulsa Garden Center you'll find a Victorian conservatory and 3-acre arboretum. The center is housed in a 21-room Italian Renaissance Villa built in 1919. The center's Linnaeus Garden is a unique demonstration/teaching garden that shows visitors new and exciting gardening skills and ideas along with various hardscapes.

TULSA BOTANIC GARDEN

TULSABOTANIC.ORG

Tulsa Botanic Garden is a 170-acre site just eight miles northwest of downtown Tulsa. Stroll around a seven-acre lake with horticultural planting beds and displays. Hike a one mile nature trail winding through native prairie and forest. Experience beautiful floral terraces and huge ornamental gardens, showcasing over 350 plant varieties and offering one of the region's largest spring bulb displays with over 100,000 bulbs. The Children's Discovery Garden is a two-acre fantastical wonderland environment with enticing horticultural plantings. The Spring Giant, a 15-ft. tall carved face, is a focal point of the garden and the source of the Stream Valley, allowing children opportunities for water play and exploration. The Botanic Garden is currently open Tuesday - Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and open late on some days.

TULSA'S SPOTLIGHT THEATRE

SPOTLIGHTTHEATRE.ORG

This unique 1928 gem was designed by avante-garde architect Bruce Goff in 1928. Today it is home every Saturday night to "The Drunkard," a hilarious melodrama that is America's longest-running play (since 1953). A companion variety show (magicians, sword-swallowers, singers, dancers, jugglers, etc.) opens the show, and there's a singalong during intermissions. Doors open at 7 p.m. Reservations are highly recommended.

RECONCILIATION PARK

JHFCENTER.ORG

A beacon of hope and healing, the John Hope Franklin Reconciliation Park features three bronze sculptures representing actual pictures from the 1921 Tulsa Race Massacre, one of the worst civic disturbances in American history. A 25-foot memorial tower depicts the history of the African American struggle from Africa to America.

ARENA DISTRICT

This growing district features the award-winning BOK Center arena, which brings in the nation's top-billing artists, and the recently renovated Cox Business Center. The downtown skyline's most recent addition is the $100 million mixed-use property One Place with space for retail, restaurants and commercial properties.

DECO DISTRICT

DECODISTRICTTULSA.COM

The visually stunning architecture in the Deco District can't be missed. Tulsa is a city founded by entrepreneurs and oil barons, and their contributions can be seen in the Art Deco buildings for which downtown Tulsa is known. The Tulsa Historical Society, Tulsa Foundation for Architects and private tour companies provide Deco walking tours. But as is Tulsa's style, old blends perfectly with new in the Deco, as many new restaurants, shops and a park are popping up.

KENDALL WHITTIER DISTRICT

KENDALLWHITTIER.COM

Located just east of downtown, Kendall Whittier is a hub for creative spots and cultural events The district's most iconic feature is Circle Cinema, Tulsa's only nonprofit and historic art house theater. Other features include local restaurants, a bar, coffee shop, art supply store and screen-printing studio

TULSA CATHEDRAL DISTRICT

TULSACATHEDRALDISTRICT.COM

Located at the southern end of the IDL, the Cathedral District boasts a rich combination of faith, life, business, and culture. People from all over Tulsa are drawn downtown every day by six historic churches, Tulsa Community College, and up-and coming entertainment and dining hot spots. With an influx of renewed interest in restoration and development, key leaders of Cathedral District businesses and organizations have come together with a unified goal of enhancing walkability and stimulating life and growth in this unique part of downtown Tulsa.

EAST VILLAGE

EASTVILLAGETULSA.ORG

For a taste of Tulsa, head east to East Village, where you'll find Girouard Vines, Tulsa's urban winery with a weekly wine tasting class, neat eats, art studios and loft apartments, among other retailers, eateries and service providers.

GREENWOOD DISTRICT

GREENWOODCULTURALCENTER.COM

Once called "Black Wall Street," Tulsa's historic Greenwood District houses artifacts at the Greenwood Cultural Center and the Mabel B. Little Heritage House. John Hope Franklin Reconciliation Park pays homage to the devastating 1921 Tulsa Race Massacre. Greenwood is also home to ONEOK Field, where the Tulsa Drillers play baseball. The stadium provides family fun and entertainment April through August.

PEARL DISTRICT

TULSAPEARL.ORG

Just on the east outskirts of downtown lies one of the city's oldest neighborhoods. Recent revitalization efforts have increased activity to the area, and visitors can enjoy a beautiful park with a walking/jogging trail, a new corner café and more.

BROOKSIDE

BROOKSIDETHEPLACETOBE.COM

Brookside offers a variety of restaurants, including coffee shops, sushi, family dining and fine five-star cuisine. It's a safe and fun place to stroll, bike, shop and enjoy outside meals and entertainment.

SOBO DISTRICT

SoBo, or the South Boston District, is a pocket of activity located just south of the heart of downtown. Enjoy BBQ or Italian food, and after dinner, listen to original music live at Mercury Lounge or The Shrine.

CHERRY STREET

Cherry Street is a well-known area in midtown Tulsa, just south of downtown. With its vintage architecture, Cherry Street is full of locally-owned bistros and cafés, as well as shopping including jewelry stores, antiques, and boutiques.

SAVORING TULSA'S FLAVOR

Justin Thompson is at ease in the kitchen. Whether he's baking, boiling, braising, frying or sautéing, he is catering to his passion. The award-winning chef calls Tulsa his home, and he's been cooking up a thriving career in his native city.

Justin began his culinary career in Tulsa in 2002 as Sous Chef of the Polo Grill. After six months, he was offered the challenge of building and developing Ciao, Baby! He opened the restaurant in June 2003 and created its Northern Italian cuisine with valuable guidance from his long-time mentors, chefs Ouida and Robert Merrifield of the Polo Grill. While at Ciao, Baby! Justin was charged with developing and opening another venture, Osage Restaurant at Gilcrease Museum.

"I've always loved cooking and have a profound respect for the basics of cooking as a means to provide nourishment," Justin said. "Further, I appreciate the value of food as a vehicle for social interaction and relationship development. So much of what we experience in life is enhanced by food. When we celebrate a birthday, job promotion, anniversary, mourn the loss of a loved one or just discuss the challenges and successes of our daily life, food is typically there."

In every business endeavor, Justin saw it as another chance to contribute to the city he loved.

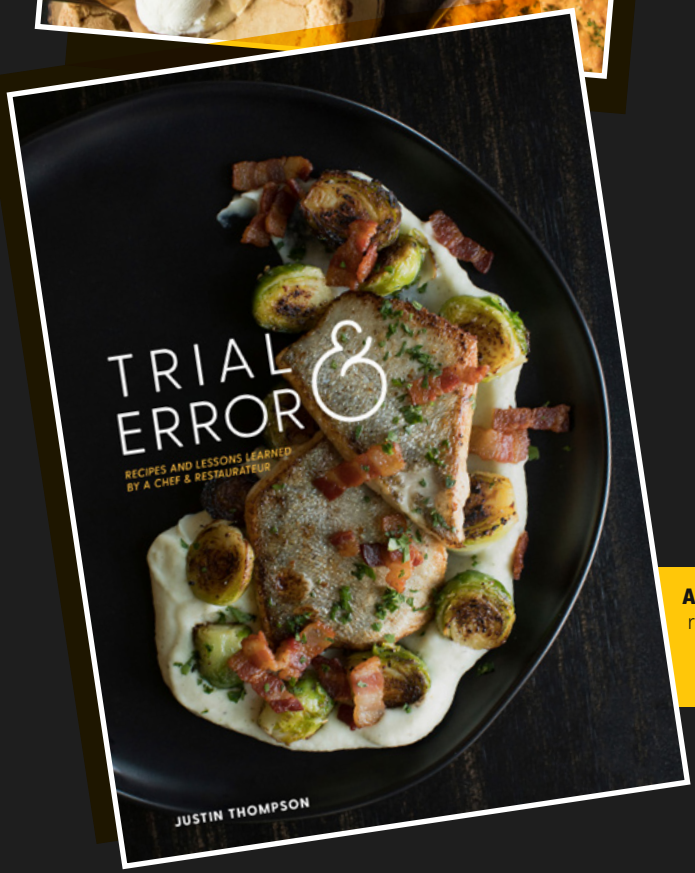
"Restaurants and chefs alike are always in the public eye, and because of this, they should act in a way that promotes community building and charitable giving. We do so much for the community because we believe that it is our responsibility to give back as a thank you for the support we see from our guests."

Prior to opening his own restaurants, Justin had the Executive Chef title at The Brasserie, Sonoma and Duke's. During this time, Justin was recognized by Tulsa People Magazine, Oklahoma Magazine and Urban Tulsa as one of Tulsa's Best Chefs. He served as Operating Chef for the 2010 Philbrook Wine Experience and was invited to be the featured chef at a fundraising dinner for former President Bill Clinton in 2009.

Justin has established his career in the city he loves, though he didn't always think a successful profession as a chef would be possible in Tulsa.

"When my brother and I were in college, I had the idea that I needed to leave Tulsa to create my perfect career," Justin recalled. "When I asked my brother about where he was going to move (assuming he wouldn't stay in Tulsa), given his passion for architecture and talent for it, he said, 'Why would I want to contribute to another city's success in the field of architecture, when I can stay here and make Tulsa a better place?' That's when I knew that I'd always stay in Tulsa and do my best to make my hometown better."

Today, Justin owns and manages JTR Group, local dining establishments that add tons of flavor to the downtown dining scene. His award-winning cuisine and charitable contributions have certainly given the city of Tulsa something to savor.



Q&A WITH JUSTIN THOMPSON

Why did you decide to invest in downtown Tulsa?

I spent the first 10 years of my career on Brookside and in Utica Square and wanted a change of scenery. I've always loved downtown and when my friend showed me the location where Juniper is now, I thought it was perfect. After Juniper, each new location just seemed right, and opportunities came to us that felt good. I think it's important for cities to have an economically sound downtown that promotes arts, entertainment, and the food scene. Luckily for me, I'm able to contribute to the downtown scene.

Juniper was the first restaurant you built by hand. Why was it important for you to incorporate the "farm to table" concept there?

Juniper is the restaurant that I had imagined since I first began cooking. In my mind, it was always a restaurant that evolved with the times, utilized local products and changed its menu frequently. Juniper is a place where my chefs can play with their food, and really explore their craft. Over the years, the chefs, sous chef, cooks and myself have created over 2,500 unique dishes out of that tiny kitchen. It's humbling to think that so many chefs and cooks contributed to the identity of the restaurant.

How do you manage all 4 brands effectively?

Each location has a GM and Chef who give so much toward supporting the brand's identity. They buy into it, they get it, and they work hard to make sure our guests and staff get what they expect and more out of their experience with us.

What makes Tulsa's local dining scene unique?

I think we have a lot of dreamers here in Tulsa. So many times, I've witnessed a new concept or style of restaurant come about and thought, "Well, that's new, that's interesting. I hope it works out for them," and most of the time, it does! Food trucks, brick and mortar restaurants, bars, catering operations, and event venues pop up in this city so frequently and are supported by the community because they are started by dreamers who don't ever listen when people say it can't or shouldn't be done.

About the Cookbook: Chef Justin Thompson shares his experiences and recipes from his twenty-year career in Tulsa, Oklahoma. Trial & Error is a collection of Justin's favorite dishes, beautifully presented with step-by-step instructions for easy replication in your own home.

Up In Smoke

After eight years in business, Burn Co. BBQ remains one of the best, most popular restaurants in Tulsa. Owner Adam Myers's secret? Doing barbecue "the long, hard, stupid way."

In 2011, Adam Myers opened Burn Co. BBQ in a small space in a modest strip mall near 11th and Harvard.

In those first days, Burn Co. was a two-man operation, with Myers on the smoker and his cousin and business partner Robby Corcoran at the register.

Like so many in the industry, Myers became a restaurateur by accident. "I worked for Hasty-Bake, manufacturing grills and then selling grills, for 12 years," Myers said. "So I spent a long time in the industry making barbecue products, selling barbecue products."

Myers sold the grills by using them. "Instead of going around telling everyone how awesome this magical metal box you set on fire is, I made food instead. I started doing cooking classes and cooking demos as a way to support the sales of Hasty-Bake. That ultimately led into people wanting me to cook for company parties, birthday parties, whatever, so I started doing it for fun."

Before long, he'd partnered with Corcoran, who had previous restaurant management experience, and hatched a plan to open the Harvard space, which was so small that Myers had to cook his meat in the alley behind the strip mall. He made everything fresh every day. "It wasn't the smartest or most profitable way to make barbecue, but it was the best way to make barbecue."

The commitment to excellence paid off. Soon, word spread among Tulsa's barbecue fanatics, and lunch lines began to form.

Eight years later, Burn Co. has grown from Myers and Corcoran (who sold his share of the company to Myers two years ago) cooking in an alley and serving in a closet to a budding empire of 40 employees in two large locations—1738 S. Boston Ave. near downtown Tulsa and a recently-opened location at RiverWalk Crossing in Jenks—that house full-service bars, butcher shops, retail swag and live music.

Today, Burn Co. is generally regarded as one of the best barbecue restaurants not just in Tulsa, or even in Oklahoma, but in the United States. In 2016, Business Insider named the restaurant #17 on its list of the 50 top barbecue joints in America. Southern Living magazine published a large feature story on Myers and likened the Burn Co. experience to a "barbecue baptism by fire." Celebrity chef Alton Brown made a stop while on a cross-country tour and tweeted his admiration: "Best BBQ we've had on the road so far." And those ridiculous lunch lines continue to this day—drive by the downtown location at 18th and Boston on any given weekday between 10:30 and 11 and you'll likely see a throng of hungry lunchers spilling out of the front doors, hoping to snag a rack of Burn Co.'s infamous baby-back ribs before they sell out.

Myers has created a culture-within-a-culture. Tulsans love their barbecue, but Burn Co. devotees possess a fervor bordering on religious. Myers attributes the popularity to the consistency of his product and his refusal to take shortcuts for the sake of a wider profit margin.

Myers and his team continue to make everything fresh every single day. If they have leftovers at the end of a lunch, they'll typically give the food away to surrounding businesses or sell what they call "refugee plates" for a greatly reduced price to late stragglers. "Reheated barbecue is not bad, but I'm not in business to make the not-baddest barbecue, I'm in business to make the best."

Myers described the process: the highest-quality meats, sausage made from scratch, and a larger-than-typical staff to ensure smooth, consistent production. Myers also promotes only from within.

"I'm not able to hire guys in from another restaurant or another barbecue joint to come over and work for me because all of our processes are different. All of my guys start out as dishwashers and prep guys and then work their way up to being a pit hand and ultimately into a pitmaster," he said. "My barbecue philosophy, in a nutshell, is: the long, hard, stupid way."

Self-deprecation aside, Myers slow-burn approach to business growth is clearly working, and Tulsa's food scene is richer for it.

COX BUSINESS CONVENTION CENTER

Cox Business Convention Center (CBCC) offers over 275,000 square-foot of event space in downtown Tulsa. Voted Best Event Venue in Tulsa* and a top 20 convention center in North America, CBCC opened in 1964 and has modernized and adapted throughout the decades to better serve its city and guests. The venue is celebrating a grand re-opening of its east side in August 2020 with the completion of a $55 million Vision Tulsa renovation.

CBCC prides itself on being in a diverse city and hosting diverse crowds in diverse spaces. The renovation allows the venue to better connect with its downtown neighbors including the 19,000 seat BOK Center - its Arena District neighbor and ASM Global sister venue. It also lets CBCC offer a valet and ride share drop-off area on the east side, more green spaces and public art, and a three-story glass entrance incorporating into the building's iconic original design.

The east entrance now opens up into a three-story glass atrium filling natural light into over 4,000 square-foot of pre-function space. The gallery opens up into the new Grand Hall with over 41,000 square-foot of multi-use event space and a 36' curved wood ceiling. The former Assembly Hall has been renovated and renamed LEGACY Hall. The name pays tribute to the venue's musical history and its honor of hosting many resident's first live music experience. Elvis Presley, B.B. King, The Rolling Stones, Garth Brooks, Elton John, Glen Campbell, The Doors, Aerosmith, Skrillex, Louie Armstrong, The Avett Brothers, Led Zepplin, and George Strait are just a few of the musical acts to grace a CBCC stage.

LEGACY Hall now offers a new box office, updated theater and dressing rooms, and a pre-function area filled with multi-volume views and art. Lobby restrooms and a Sensory Room have also been added and are by the nearby escalator (stairs and elevators are also nearby). The hall will continue to support meetings and conferences, as well as hosting live music, comedy, and theater performances. The nearby Conference Hall has also been updated as well as two floors of meeting rooms. The venue is proud to offer 28 meeting rooms throughout, and to offer clients and guests enhanced lighting and Internet updates.

CBCC is over 300,000 square-foot, and the Main Gallery is the space connecting it all together. In this Gallery the east and west connect, and guests will find the skybridge connecting to DoubleTree by Hilton Downtown Tulsa, the Osage Hotel & Casino Box Office and Lounge, Guest Services, a Cafe and Concessions, a Little Free Library, and a souvenir vending machine by Mythic Press.

The Main Gallery connects to Grand Hall, Conference Hall, and the 106,000 square-foot Pepsi Exhibit Hall. The divisible and column-free hall offers drop down power, overhead loading doors, and a 12-bay loading dock - making it perfect for trade shows, conventions, athletic events, live performances, and large-scale social events.

Past the Cafe, guests will find a Zen Garden and a soothing light show in the gallery leading to the Tulsa Ballroom (over 31,000 square-foot of divisible event space) and West Meeting Rooms. The Ballroom opens up to a multi-volume glass pre-function space with another great view of downtown Tulsa. Tulsa Ballroom is a favorite for social gala planners, meeting planners, and conference planners with it's valet and ride-share drop-off, nearby meeting rooms, impressive pre-function space, and creative technical opportunities within the actual ballroom.

It's not uncommon for CBCC to host a live comedy act, black-tie gala, corporate meeting and athletic event all in the same day. The new renovation allows even greater flexibility in event planning and better flow for guests and attendees.

CBCC is known for being a modern and clean venue with repeat clients and exceptional food and beverage services. The venue offers exclusive in-house catering by SAVOR and the team is led by Executive Chef Devin Levine, CEC, who offers over 40 years of culinary experience and is known for his local, seasonal, and highly personalized menus. He is joined by Executive Sous Chef Sarah Leavell who is an American Culinary Federation award-winning chef. In addition to food and beverage, CBCC offers in-house bars and concession, floral, decor, Technical Services (including WiFi and a full-time in-house Producer), Security, Guest Services, and Box Office.

CBCC loves to introduce clients and guests to Tulsa and offers a "Show Your Badge" discount program to help them navigate the best food, drinks, retail, and attractions in the city. The venue also offers a Little free Library in its Cafe, a Sensory Room, hotel toiletry up-cycling (with products going to a local charity), Sanitation Stations, a Welcome Committee, and a Souvenir Vending Machine by Mythic Press.

Tulsa consistently ranks in the Top 10 Most Generous Cities in the U.S. and is chosen by The Chronicle of Philanthropy readers as "Best City for Philanthropy." CBCC is where Tulsa's best and most generous party, and the non-profits in the city consistently raise tens of millions of dollars every year during social galas in the venue's Tulsa Ballroom. CBCC staff also embody Tulsa's generous spirit, with over 80% of staff regularly volunteering within the local community and a special committee ("ASM Rocks") dedicated to local volunteer work and initiatives.

Whether it's a meeting, sporting event, trade show, or black-tie event, CBCC offers a one-stop experience for event planners and a memorable experience for every guest. CBCC is located at 100 Civic Center in downtown Tulsa, and within walkable distance to over 2,000 hotel rooms. Learn more online at CoxCenterTulsa.com.

TULSA INSPIRES A SOUND ALL ITS OWN

TULSANS MARCH TO THE BEAT OF THEIR OWN DRUM.

The Washington Post called Tulsa "a musical mecca," and for good reason. We've got the archives of Bob Dylan and Woody Guthrie. We're the international capital of Western Swing. And renowned modern songwriters John Fullbright and John Moreland call Tulsa home. The local scene is just as happening now as it was when Eric Clapton and J.J. Cale were livin' on Tulsa time.

HITTING THE RIGHT NOTE

Concert venues known the world over abound in Tulsa.

BOK CENTER
BOKCENTER.COM

When the world's most renowned performers come to the Heartland, they come to the BOK Center. The 18,000-plus-seat arena transformed Tulsa's downtown landscape, spurring economic growth and development, all by hosting today's hottest names in music and entertainment, including Madonna, Lady Gaga, Reba McEntire, Katy Perry, Justin Bieber, Paul McCartney and Jason Aldean.

TULSA THEATER
TULSATHEATER.COM

Two famous venues, Tulsa Theater and Cain's Ballroom, are historic buildings and concert halls that have hosted, and continue to host, some of the world's greatest musicians and entertainers. Completed in 1914, the Tulsa Theater was originally designed to serve as the city's Municipal Auditorium and was listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1979. A sampling of performers who have graced the stage include Chicago, Al Green, Merle Haggard, Buddy Holly, B.B. King, and U2.

CAIN'S BALLROOM
CAINSBALLROOM.COM

Cain's has been a popular nightspot in Tulsa since the 1920s—especially for Country Western aficionados during its early years. Often referred to as the Carnegie Hall of Country Western music, it was here that Bob Wills and The Texas Playboys unveiled their Western Swing music. Today, artists of every genre play to sell-out crowds at this iconic music venue.

SKYLINE EVENT CENTER
OSAGECASINO.COM

Electrifying live music is what you will find at the new 2,000 seat Skyline Event Center located in the Osage Casino & Hotel Tulsa. The 15,000 square foot venue features live music performances by top headliners from around the country. This versatile space includes flexible seating to suit your event needs.

THE JOINT
HARDROCKCASINOTULSA.COM

The Joint: Tulsa's 45,000 square foot room offers amphitheater-style seating with excellent sightlines to watch top acts burn up the stage. Combine that with a state-of-the-art light and sound system within an intimate 2,700-seat setting, and you have a one-of-a-kind experience for music lovers of all ages. Located at Hard Rock Hotel & Casino Tulsa, The Joint regular books classic rock favorites and the world's best standup comics.

PARADISE COVE
RIVERSPIRITTULSA.COM

Paradise never sounded so good. World-famous rock acts, nationally touring comedians, and the toughest brawlers in MMA and boxing make for unforgettable experiences at Paradise Cove. Located at River Spirit Casino Resort, the venue is large enough to attract the biggest acts, yet intimate enough to get you close to the action.

STUDIO ROW

By Teresa Knox

Located in the heart of the Pearl District just east of downtown (3rd and Trenton), Studio Row is the next up and coming, historic neighborhood in Tulsa. With The Church Studio as its epicenter, Studio Row is committed to promoting the music industry and honoring Leon Russell's legacy. The boutique community promotes a culture that is propelled by music, art, good food, and community collaboration.

Studio Row visitors will also enjoy local art and shopping at Hummingbird Fine Craft. Inspired by Leon Russell's beautiful song "Hummingbird," the studio is an artist cooperative and gallery featuring the work of Tulsa artists and markers on rotation.

Adorn is a gift boutique specializing in beautiful tabletops, unique home goods, heirloom holiday decor and gifts for those friends, family and special people in your life that have everything! Stop in and check out the homemade Leon Russell glass mosaic.

Love Cuban Food? You'll love Mango's! Mary and Anthony Martinez will delight your palate with authentic Cuban cuisine, coffee, and desserts in an intimate environment and simple Caribbean decor. Check it out and see if you can find Leon!

If visitors are looking for unique places to stay, Studio Row is also the home to the cozy and spacious Duets BnB. This two-suite boutique bed and breakfast sits above The Coffee Blues and is available to rent per day. Guests will step back in time in the 1913 structure and enjoy an upscale decor. Luxury bath products and linens will delight visitors and breakfast is included in the stay.

Studio Records is your neighborhood vinyl record store for new, used, sell or trade!

Freeway Cafe is a long-term staple in the neighborhood and offers the best in home cooking with an old-school diner ambiance. Tom Petty signed his record deal with Shelter Records in this building!

Owned by Grammy Award-winning drummer David Teegarden, Teegarden Studios offers fully automated mixing, mastering capabilities directly to CD or DAT, a large assortment of vintage world class microphones and outboard processing equipment, and a roomy and hip studio.

The Church Studio will open its doors to the public in Summer of 2020. Located on the National Register of Historic Places, The Church Studio has been under an extensive historic renovation, carefully crafting the studio once owned by Rock & Roll Hall of Famer and Grammy Award-winning singer, songwriter, producer and musician Leon Russell, who converted the 100-year-old church into a world-class studio in 1972. Once the renovation is complete, the iconic church will be a recording studio--both analog and digital--for national and local artists alike. Furthermore, it will be home to The Church Studio Archive, a rare collection of over 4,500 items of memorabilia and artifacts celebrating the history of the church, the Tulsa Sound, and Leon Russell. The historic studio will also be available as a community venue and be open to the public for memberships, tours, volunteer opportunities, and scheduled events.

Visit studiorowtulsa.com for more information about the neighborhood and upcoming events!

TULSA BOTANIC GARDEN

A new view every day! | by Lori Hutson

Tulsa Botanic Garden is an all-season oasis blooming in the Osage Hills just eight miles northwest of downtown Tulsa. Each spring the Garden celebrates Tulsa Botanic Blooms with over 100,000 tulips, hyacinths, daffodils and other spring flowers. Summer brings lush greenery and flowers including hibiscus, lilies, hydrangeas and more. Autumn festivities adorn the Garden with pumpkins and scarecrows. Garden of Lights offers an escape from the hustle and bustle of the holidays with the chance to make new memories with family and friends while strolling through the illuminated paths.

The A.R. and Marylouise Tandy Floral Terraces is a three-and-a-half acre ornamental garden showcasing over 800 plant varieties on four themed terraces. Colors and fragrance abound throughout the year along with the sounds of water features cascading down this hillside garden. Be sure to look for the Art Deco-inspired details paying homage to Tulsa's rich architectural history.

The Children's Discovery Garden offers a two-acre wonderland featuring interactive elements for all ages including the Spring Giant, a one-of-a-kind fantastical cave and the Stream Valley with spitting animal fountains. Everyone enjoys making ephemeral creations on the Art Wall and watching for butterflies, hummingbirds and other pollinators in the Meadow. Get up-close with carnivorous plants and look for tadpoles by the Round Pond. Play musical instruments and experience textures and scents on the Sensory Walk. Families can make larger-than-life insect whirligigs come to life in the Meadow and read a story in the shade of the Tree Fort.

The Lakeside Promenade is a three-quarter mile path gracefully encompassing the central seven-acre lake and offering picturesque views and beautiful plantings. The Cross Timbers Trail provides a 1.5 mile hike through the native prairie and forest and opportunities for bird watching.

Tulsa Botanic Garden (3900 Tulsa Botanic Drive, 74127) is open year-round Tuesday through Sunday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and offers late hours on Thursdays during daylight saving time.

PUBLIC ART

In 1969, city officials passed an ordinance designating one percent of public construction dollars be set aside for artwork. Ever since, the artistic collection has grown and accounts for a large number of outstanding art pieces adorning the city's landscape, from the Nature Works outdoor sculptures on Riverside Drive to the latest, impressive art collection in the BOK Center. Take some time to explore the artistic quality of our city. You'll find unexpected treasures in our public art.

BOK CENTER ART COLLECTION

BOKCENTER.COM

The gleaming BOK Center houses more than just world-class entertainment acts and sports teams; there's a million dollar-plus art collection adorning this downtown icon. Five renowned artists: Joe Andoe, Mark Lewis, father-son team Bill and Demos Glass and Kendall Buster have their artwork on display.

CYRUS AVERY CENTENNIAL PLAZA

This public sculpture plaza, located on Southwest Boulevard at Riverside Drive, celebrates the Father of Route 66 and recognizes the importance of "The Mother Road." The plaza features the flags of the eight states of Route 66, the Route 66 Skywalk, a park, a pedestrian walkway, and several beautifully detailed bronze statues including a land-run horse & wagon and an old auto featuring Will Rogers. The plaza is a great place to pull over and stretch your legs, learn about the history of Route 66, and take photos.

JOHN HOPE FRANKLIN RECONCILIATION PARK

JHFCENTER.ORG

Reconciliation Park memorializes the 1921 Tulsa Race massacre (called the worst civic disturbance in American history), giving voice to the untold story and highlighting the important role African Americans played in building Oklahoma. Located in Tulsa's Historic Greenwood District, the public park offers docent-led tours, and features beautiful green spaces, a plaza with multiple bronze sculptures, and the Tower of Reconciliation sculpture that honors early Tulsa black leaders.

THE NATUREWORKS SCULPTURES ON RIVERSIDE DRIVE

Impressive displays of nature adorn Riverside Drive thanks to Tulsa's NatureWorks, a non-profit organization dedicated to assisting wildlife conservation efforts. One of the latest additions is "Black Mesa Muleys" (near Galveston Ave.), sculpted by artist Daniel Parker.

TULSA HISTORICAL SOCIETY VINTAGE GARDEN — THE FIVE MOONS

TULSAHISTORY.ORG

"The Five Moons," was installed on the grounds of the Tulsa Historical Society's new home. On the northeast corner of 25th and Peoria, a group of five larger-than-life bronze statues honor Native Americans. Native American sculptor Gary Henson created the five statues. Among his other works is the "The Great Spirit" sculpture, located on the southeast corner of 21st and Peoria in Woodward Park.

Circle Cinema

Enjoy films in a unique setting

Circle Cinema is Tulsa's oldest-standing movie theatre. It originally opened in 1928 and now operates as the only nonprofit cinema in the area.

But Circle Cinema is so much more than your local cinema. It celebrates creativity, the arts and filmmakers from around the corner and around the world.

Circle Cinema educates, enlightens and entertains its guests 365 days a year through selected features and programs that expose and connect the Tulsa community to global issues, environments and cultures.

At Circle Cinema, you'll enjoy:

- Independent, foreign and documentary films
- Familiar classics and crossover favorites
- Live theatre and performance broadcasts
- Silent films with musical accompaniment from the restored 1928 Robert Morton theatre pipe organ
- And more special programs

Preserving a Cultural Icon

The Outsiders House Museum is dedicated to the preservation of the home and memorabilia used in The Outsiders, filmed by Francis Ford Coppola in Tulsa in 1982.

In the early '80s, Oscar-winning director Francis Ford Coppola came to Tulsa to catapult S.E. Hinton's memorable characters off the pages of The Outsiders book onto the big screen. Rather than use a Hollywood backlot, the filmmaker and crew transformed an ordinary Tulsa neighborhood into a fully functioning movie set. In 1983, The Outsiders was released, featuring a cast of young, talented actors who would go on to become household names (Tom Cruise, Patrick Swayze, Rob Lowe, C.Thomas Howell, to name a few).

In 2016, Hip Hop artist Danny Boy O'Connor (founding member of House of Pain) purchased the "Curtis Brothers House," the modest bungalow where the scrappy, close-knit Greasers lived, loved, fought and reconciled. A longtime fan of the novel and the movie, O'Connor had visited the site during earlier Tulsa tour stops, and just couldn't shake the belief that the house needed to be preserved for future generations.

The museum's main focus is preserving the The Outsiders House. The house has been restored to reflect its appearance in the movie, and contains one of a kind exhibits, collections and memorabilia associated with the movie.

The museum is located at 731 N. St. Louis, Tulsa.

CYCLING

by ANDY WHEELER

From our toddler years to our sunset, bicycles provide happiness, health and community. It's a skill so memorable and unique, it has its own cliché, "It's like riding a bike!" Cycling is a mode of transport with virtually no downside. Even the discomfort of climbing a long hill is rewarded with joy of the decent.

Tulsa's climate and terrain also support bicycling. With Tulsa's average number of sunny days over 270 and terrain from long, forested hills to rolling prairie to pancake-flat tarmac, it is no wonder Tulsa's "Green Country" is seen as a great place for cycling!

The number of Tulsa bicyclists has increased exponentially in recent years. This increase is among families, recreational riders, commuters, competitive athletes and even children. The number of cyclists on Tulsa's trails and bicycle-friendly roads is purposeful. Bike clubs have grown in number and membership, bike shops continue to open and expand, and cycling events litter the regional calendar.

Local teams include the state's largest, Soundpony, and Triad Bank, the state's oldest. Tulsa Wheelmen and many others range from serious race teams to purely recreational. These clubs provide a supportive environment where less experienced cyclists can learn from more seasoned veterans, receive words of encouragement or just share laughs and stories from their rides throughout the area.

"The greatest evidence of the growing cycling influence in the Tulsa area is the development and unique influence of the Tulsa Bike Club."

During Daylight Savings Time, there is typically a group ride, large or small, every day of the week. The Wednesday Night Ride (WNR) is by far the largest with hundreds of cyclists from beginners to experienced racers leaving from the west side of the Arkansas River for the beautiful hills of Osage County for 20 to 45 miles of fun. The WNR can be as fast or as slow as each rider desires; important for groups like the Tulsa Divas who are committed to getting more women cycling.

Most rides start at Tulsa's River Parks. With easy-to-navigate streets leading to the River Parks and the recently added Gathering Place you can easily enjoy 50+ miles and never ride on a city street. The rise in cycling activity has been supported by an ever-increasing number of bicycle stores with knowledgeable staff. Each shop is a great place to learn about rides, trails, routes and local cycling gossip. Many of these shops offer quality bike rentals for those traveling without their own bikes. These shops help foster Tulsa's rich history of competitive bicycle racing, whether road, mountain, cyclocross, or gravel. Cyclocross is a spectator-friendly event where heckling the racers is actively encouraged. Check with local bike shops and regional on-line resources for races scattered all over the calendar on the roads (and off) around the Tulsa area.

The most famous cycling event in Tulsa is the Saint Francis Tulsa Tough. Occurring in June, this three-day event puts Tulsa on the map of regional criterium racing and Gran Fondo rides. There is also a Townie Ride for nearly everyone in the family that brings riders of all levels together. This weekend is what many Tulsans refer to as, "Christmas (or "Critmas") in June", as it is a celebration of bicycles. While the Gran Fondo is a timed ride throughout Green Country, the racing is limited to downtown Tulsa. Friday's racing showcases the Blue Dome District with Saturday's races occurring in the Tulsa Arts District. Sunday's racing wraps up in the Riverview neighborhood and Cry Baby Hill. Cry Baby Hill is similar to Mardi Gras with a bike race! This spectacle is a "bucket list" event!

Thanksgiving weekend brings the USA BMX Grand Nationals Tulsa's Expo Square. The "Greatest Race on Earth" features the nation's finest BMX riders, both men and women, young and not-so-young competing for national championship jerseys and a place in bike racing history. With more than $10 million in economic impact for the Tulsa region and thousands of visitors from around the country and internationally, the "Grands" play a substantial role in the cycling engine that drives Tulsa's economy. The pending relocation of the USA BMX headquarters to Tulsa will bring Olympic and world championship-level training facilities to the heart of the city.

Additionally, bike-share programs such as Tulsa Townies (tulsa-townies.com) and This Machine (thismachinetulsa.org) offer locals and visitors alike an opportunity to navigate portions of the city via bikes.

Bicycles are providing economic growth and expanding healthy living and recreational options for Tulsans as well as visitors to the region. Tulsa really is a great place to ride a bike!

Tulsa's Urban Wilderness

A destination for the active adventurer.

One of northeast Oklahoma's unique recreational treasures, the Turkey Mountain Urban Wilderness encompasses several hundred acres of rugged park land located only a few miles from Tulsa's vibrant downtown. The landscape creates a sense of being far from city life, with visitors surrounded by a thick canopy of trees. Turkey Mountain offers miles of winding dirt trails for hiking, mountain biking and trail running.

The main parking lot, restroom and trailhead are located at 67th and South Elwood. Nearby are three covered pavilions that are available on a first-come, first-served basis, plus children's climbing boulders. Two of the park's bronze wildlife sculptures, "Rio Grande Turkeys" and "Rocky Mountain Bighorn," enhance the entrance.

If you plan a trip to Turkey Mountain, wear seasonally appropriate clothing. Sturdy footwear is recommended even for short hikes. The only drinking water is at the trailhead, so park visitors should always carry water, including water for pets, which must be on a leash at all times. The trails are rough and often rocky, with exposed tree roots, low limbs and heavy brush, including poison ivy. Grades are steep in many areas and slippery after rains. Turkey Mountain is intentionally maintained in a wilderness state to offer a challenging recreational experience in contrast to the miles of mostly flat trails and manicured park areas elsewhere along the riverfront.

A map of the marked trails is located near the trailhead, along with signage describing the varying degrees of difficulty for some of the trails. Downloadable maps are available at riverparks.org. The curfew throughout River Parks, including Turkey Mountain, is 11 p.m. to 5 a.m.

Land acquisition for a public park on Turkey Mountain began in 1978 with 147 acres purchased with funds from Tulsa County, a federal grant and a contribution from the landowner, J.L. Reynolds. In 1996, Stephen J. Jatras donated an additional 80 acres of land at the corner of 71st and Elwood. In subsequent years, additional tracts were acquired with City of Tulsa 3rd Penny Sales Tax funds. Those parcels and others owned by the City of Tulsa were leased to the Authority and included in the wilderness boundaries. The extension of the Vision Tulsa program in 2016 includes $7.6 million for Turkey Mountain: $5.6 million for the acquisition of additional land for the park and $2 million for amenities. A loan to River Parks Authority from the George Kaiser Family Foundation and QuikTrip Corporation allowed the Vision land purchases to begin soon after the vote so that acquisition opportunities would not be lost.

In late 2017, Tulsa Mayor G.T. Bynum announced that the City of Tulsa had agreed to transfer title to River Parks Authority for its leased Turkey Mountain properties, assuring that it will remain public park property in perpetuity. In support of this action by the city, the George Kaiser Family

"Great getaway" Been on all the trails. Sometimes I lost it and had to go off path but it's always a lot of fun when I go.

Foundation, which has been land banking properties on Turkey Mountain for over a decade, announced that it will deed its properties to River Parks Authority for inclusion in the Turkey Mountain Urban Wilderness. It is expected that a master plan encompassing the entire wilderness will be undertaken in the next year or two.

Turkey Mountain's forest is an example of a cross timber area that represents the transition between the Great Plains and the Ozark Plateau. Native species common to this part of the River Parks system include Post and Blackjack Oak, Hickory, Redbud, and many others. The park's ecosystem also supports a variety of wildlife, with occasional sightings of deer, coyotes and bobcats. The origin of the name Turkey Mountain remains an unsolved mystery, as does local lore of Viking visits. But the land figured into Tulsa's early history as the site of oil well drilling and is still traversed by a section of the 1904 Midland Valley Railroad line now owned by the Union Pacific Railroad and operated by the Tulsa-Sapulpa Union Railway. It is believed that the name Turkey Mountain stems from the likelihood that the area was once a popular spot for hunting wild turkeys.

The Wilderness Area features two large ponds and miles of winding dirt trails. A 2015 Turkey Mountain User Survey conducted by the Tulsa Urban Wilderness Coalition found that most recreational usage is hiking/walking/running, with additional usage for mountain biking and horseback riding. The survey also showed that Turkey Mountain is both a regional and national attraction, with documented evidence of numerous out-of-state visitors to the park.

Improvements at the main entrance to the Wilderness Area were completed in 2009 with a grant from the George Kaiser Family Foundation. That gift financed expanded parking, a restroom building, climbing boulders and improved trailhead access. "Three pavilions located near the entrance were financed by proceeds from "Wild Turkey," a biennial fund-raising event that benefits River Parks' projects and programs. Supporters of River Parks Friends also contributed to the pavilions. In response to demand, a second parking lot to serve park visitors was opened and later expanded on 61st Street, west of Elwood Avenue.

Outdoor Recreation at Tulsa's River Parks

By Janet Kendall

River Parks along the Arkansas River extends from the western edge of downtown, south to 101st Street on the east bank and to 71st Street on the west bank, with 26 miles of lighted asphalt trails, parking, restrooms, and furnished rest stops along the way. Park goers exercise, socialize or find peaceful solitude among the trees and trails along Tulsa's riverfront. The city's largest collection of bronze wildlife sculptures prowl the landscape and there are shaded spots for picnics, reading a good book, or the simple enjoyment of ever-changing river views.

Festival Park hosts entertainment and family fun, from Tulsa's signature fall festival, Linde Oktoberfest Tulsa, to concerts, fireworks, runs and more. Sports include rugby, disc golf, fishing and soccer, while water features at the 41st Street Plaza bring cool delights on hot summer days. The park's "crown jewel," the Turkey Mountain Urban Wilderness, rises above the river's west bank from I-44 to 71st Street. Rugged and rocky, the 600 thickly-wooded acres feature an inviting mix of dirt trails, ponds, and spectacular views of the city-perfect for hiking, biking, or running.

For the best in outdoor recreation, find yourself at River Parks!

Experience Green Country

Tulsa is the heart of Green Country, where northeast Oklahoma's treasures are hidden in rolling hills and small towns. Discover history, culture and more within an hour's drive of Tulsa.

LOOKING FOR A DAY TRIP OUTSIDE TULSA?

Green Country offers a long list of unique attractions within an hour of the heart of Tulsa. Enjoy a day trip and see what northeast Oklahoma has to offer.

Your adventures will uncover remarkable finds, like Frank Lloyd Wright's only skyscraper, a historic oil well and a true tall grass prairie complete with roaming bison. Traverse the lands of the Cherokees, Creeks and Osages, or take a spin on America's Main Street – Route 66.

You can also step inside a museum honoring Oklahoma's favorite son, Will Rogers. A visit to the weekend homestead of an oil baron finds you marveling at the Western art collection amassed inside a museum or delighting at the exotic and native animals grazing nearby. Green Country has a storied past, and the many museums and historic sites pay tribute to those of diverse cultures who first ventured into an unsettled land.

Be sure to take in the beautiful scenery – from waiving prairie grasslands to lush Ozark foothills – as you discover hill-top wineries, gorgeous parks, sparkling lakes and clear streams.

TAHLEQUAH

A little over an hour southeast of Tulsa is one of the most historically significant cities west of the Mississippi. Home to the Cherokee Nation and cultural centers, numerous festivals, and outdoor recreation on both the Illinois River and the clear waters of Tenkiller Lake.

BARTLESVILLE

Less than an hour away you'll find a town whose oil-rich heritage, art deco history and cowboy culture combine to create an interesting vibe. The arts and festivals abound. See the only skyscraper designed by Frank Lloyd Wright in the heart of downtown. Hidden away in the rugged Osage Hills of Northeastern Oklahoma, Woolaroc was established in 1925 as the ranch retreat of oilman Frank Phillips. The 3,700-acre ranch features a wildlife preserve and a museum.

PAWHUSKA

Just over an hour drive from Tulsa is Pawhuska, home of The Pioneer Woman, Ree Drummond. Known for her hit TV show on Food Network and numerous best-selling cook books, Drummond resides on a sprawling ranch in the Osage County hills and has set up shop in the heart of town with the creation of The Mercantile. Affectionately known as "The Merc," the restaurant and store offers delicious meals (try the mac & cheese), vintage gifts, and décor for the entire home. A little outside of town and down the road from the Drummond Ranch is the Tallgrass Prairie Preserve. The largest tract of tallgrass prairie left in the world, the site is owned, protected, and managed by the Nature Conservancy. You won't want to miss the scenery and celebrity that is Pawhuska.

CLAREMORE

Enter Claremore the historical way via Route 66, the Mother Road. Known for its many museums, Claremore is home to the Will Rogers Memorial Museum, the J.M. Davis Arms and Historical Museum, and Rogers State University.

GRAND LAKE O' THE CHEROKEES

Smaller towns like Grove or Disney offer charming shops, restaurants, entertainment and numerous attractions, including Picture in Scripture Amphitheater. Some of the best fishing in the region is found on Grand Lake, while also boasting areas for water sports.

BROKEN ARROW

In Broken Arrow, you discover a city with the tranquil atmosphere of a small community while offering a variety of cultural, shopping and sporting opportunities. Close to attractions, lakes and rivers, you'll discover why it was named one of the "Best Places to Live in America" by Money Magazine. The fast-growing suburb boasts hiking trails, a nature park and nine public and private golf courses.

PRYOR

Surrounded by lakes, parks and waterfalls in the foothills of the Ozark Mountains, Pryor is yet another destination for outdoor activity. Lake Hudson is less than 10 minutes away. Pryor is home to Rocklahoma, featuring internationally recognized performers and the DAM J.A.M. Bicycle Tour. Other attractions include Dry Gulch U.S.A. and Coo-Y-Yah Museum. Pryor is also home to Cherokee and Osage Indian artifacts, art and local history items.

MUSKOGEE

A destination for history, art, nature, shopping and entertainment. Native American history lives at the Ataloa Lodge & Museum. The U.S.S. Batfish, a retired naval submarine, is an always popular attraction, as are the stunning azaleas in Honor Heights Park each April during the Azalea Festival.

CHEROKEE TOURISM

Discover the amazing heritage of the Cherokee Nation in Oklahoma. Cherokee Tourism operates tours, including stops at the Cherokee Heritage Center and Museum, which houses the Trail of Tears exhibit; an Ancient Village and Adam's Corner Rural Village. Guests may also visit the Murrell Home, the only antebellum plantation home left in Oklahoma. Enjoy Tahlequah, the capital city of the great Cherokee Nation, while touring historic properties, including the Cherokee National Supreme Court and Cherokee National Jail. Guided tours are available by reservation.

SAND SPRINGS

Enjoy a relaxing bed and breakfast stay with modern amenities in the beautiful lakeside cabins at Meadow Lake Ranch. Located just minutes from downtown Tulsa, Meadow Lake is a breathtaking destination for weddings or romantic getaways. Offering a variety of dude ranch and team building activities this is the perfect venue for a daytrip or corporate event. Come enjoy the private lakes, bass fishing, walking trails, and scenic views of Meadow Lake Ranch.

Expo Square

Expo Square, with its historic Art Deco-inspired buildings, large livestock facilities and signature Golden Driller statue standing 76 feet tall, is a location that draws large crowds both locally and internationally.

Expo Square continues to be an economic driver for Tulsa County and the City of Tulsa. With over 300 events each year, the 240-acre complex remains busy hosting a variety of consumer, agricultural and special interest events.

With the passage of Vision Tulsa, Expo Square was able to fund infrastructure and facility enhancements that allow existing events to grow and the recruitment of additional large-scale, national events. Recently updated projects include a new livestock facility and a permanent outdoor stage. Both projects have a positive impact on the Tulsa State Fair, enhancing the guest experience during Tulsa's largest family event.

Expo Square is the proud host to some of the nation's top agricultural events; which is made possible in part by the existing, state-of-the-art arenas and barns. The new livestock facility is part of the Built Ford Tough Livestock Complex that consists of three permanent, climate-controlled arenas and five stalling barns. The facility is equipped with nine high-volume, low velocity fans, operable louvers for natural ventilation and clerestory windows for natural lighting.

The permanent outdoor stage is a beautiful new addition to the property. The stage is available for rental and events throughout the year, increasing options for current events and attracting new entertainment options to the community. The stage design reflects the unique style of the River Spirit Expo, while blending with the surrounding facilities. In order to attract national tours and festivals, the stage has a performance area of 60 feet by 40 feet and 224 tons of structural steel, which allows for extensive light, sound and video equipment.

The Expo Square is often the scene of the Tulsa State Fair, a city tradition of over 100 years! At the fair, attendees enjoy new twists on traditional foods, such as a mac & cheese bowl with custom toppings or cinnamon roll fries. Families spend the day enjoying grounds entertainment like Sea Lion Splash and the All-Star Stunt Dog Challenge or visiting the Petting Zoo. The Tulsa State Fair has grown into one of the best fairs in the country, and it highlights traditions of the past and showcases innovative ideas for the future. Usually held at the beginning of October, the fair has unfortunately been cancelled due to COVID-19 restrictions. Stay tuned for news on the 2021 Tulsa State Fair!

Expo Square is an instrumental asset to the residents of Tulsa. It not only increases sales tax revenue, but also brings quality of life attractions to the area. If you haven't visited lately, stop by!

The Tulsa State Fair consistently ranks in the top 20 while drawing over a million visitors each year.

History of Tulsa

From Indian Territory to oil boomtown, Tulsa has experienced many changes over the generations. Settled in the 1800s by Native American tribes traveling west, Tulsa is deeply rooted in Native American heritage, oil, arts and culture.

Take a stroll down memory lane and check out a few facts of how this beautiful area became a booming metropolis.

Main Street, Tulsa, 1907

1890s | 1900s | 1910s | 1920s | 1930s | 1940s

Around 1901, Tulsa rapidly grew from a small frontier town to a booming community with the discovery of "black gold," otherwise known as oil. Investors flooded into the city, neighborhoods sprang up and Tulsa started taking shape. Visitors can still drive through Red Fork (West Tulsa) and see the site of the first oil well in Tulsa County.

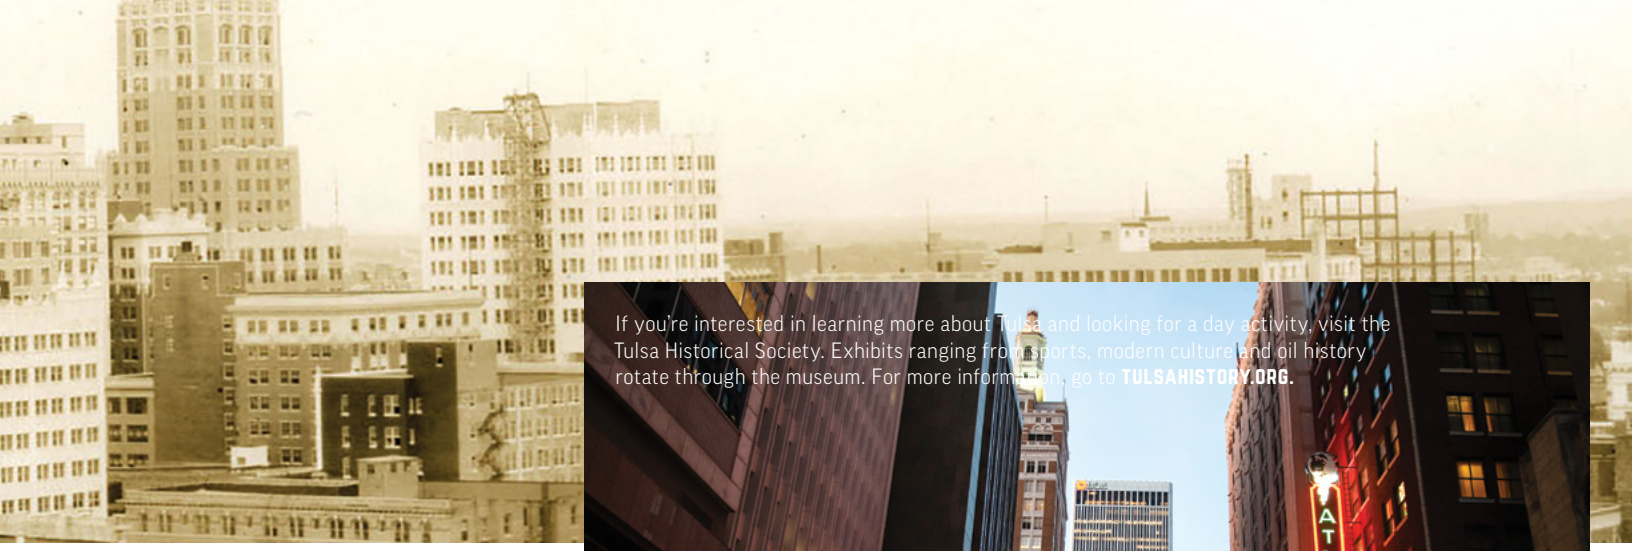
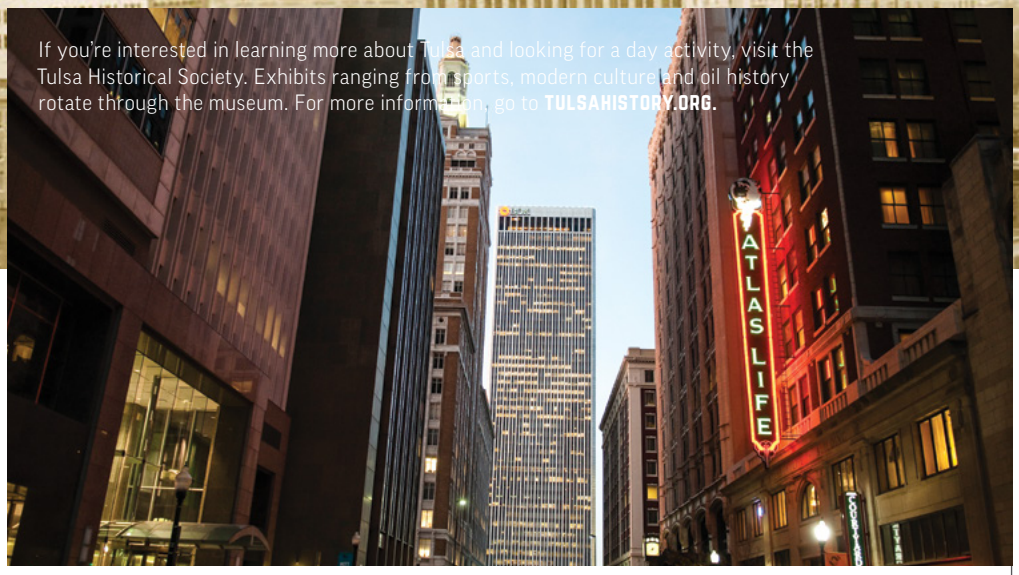
One of the most significant events in Tulsa's history was the 1921 Race massacre. Following World War I, one of the most affluent African American communities in the country was known as the Greenwood District, or "Black Wall Street." On June 1 of 1921, the Greenwood District was looted and burned by white rioters, nearly destroying the entire Greenwood area.

Today, the Greenwood District is experiencing a physical and cultural rebirth as a thriving business hub for diverse business owners.





If you're interested in learning more about Tulsa and looking for a day activity, visit the Tulsa Historical Society. Exhibits ranging from sports, modern culture and oil history rotate through the museum. For more information, go to TULSAHISTORY.ORG.

The 1990s placed Tulsa on the roadmap to success in the 21st century. Through its perseverant nature, Tulsa attracted key industries and businesses to the region. Most notably, Tulsa became the home for several factories and telecommunication centers. The renaissance was beginning, and Tulsa's economy was rising.

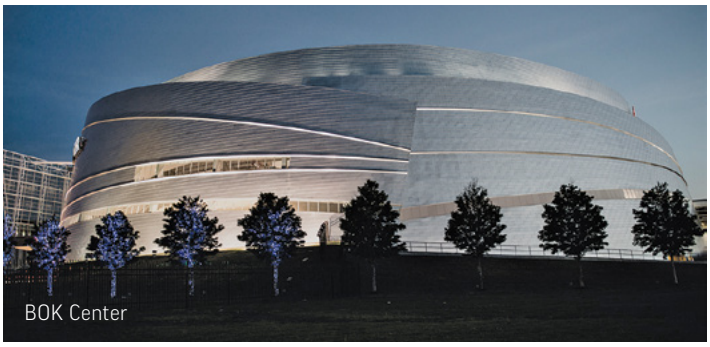
Today the region is thriving, and Tulsa is on the map for travelers worldwide. Tulsa has the amenities of a large city, while holding on to its small feel. Tulsa continues to grow and inspire.

1950s | 1960s | 1970s | 1980s | 1990s | 2000s | 2010s

In the 1950s, Tulsa was dubbed "America's Most Beautiful City." With the mansions built in the 20s and an urban renewal initiative to build parks and attractions, Tulsa embraced its beauty and became an example of culture and fine living.

In the 1980s, Tulsa experienced an oil bust. At that point, Tulsans became known for their perseverance and proved this would not shut their city down. Through initiatives by the people of Tulsa, the city started attracting new industries. Previous attractions were remodeled and Tulsans were beginning the change toward large-city amenities and a small-town feel.

In the early 2000s, Tulsans came together and passed "Vision 2025." The capital investment package led to a renaissance throughout the region, specifically in downtown Tulsa. The nationally famous BOK Center was built and attracted the WNBA and numerous large-scale entertainment events. The BOK Center was just part of the overall renaissance in Tulsa. The Tulsa Arts district started booming and ONEOK Field was constructed, and businesses began migrating back to the heart of the city.



BOK Center

* Modern-day "Tulsa" derives from the Lochapoka word, "Tulasi." The name was given upon settling the land in 1836 at a site near present-day Cheyenne Ave. and 18th street. In this place, under a large burr oak tree, the Lochapoka, a clan of the Creek Indians, established their home. The ceremonial tree is still standing in the Creek Nation Council Oak Park. Visitors are invited to have a picnic and/or stroll through this beautiful park in downtown Tulsa.

WALL ST

Black Wall Street Revisited

Early in the twentieth century, Tulsa's African American community, the "Greenwood District," crafted a nationally-renowned entrepreneurial center. De jure segregation confined African American dollars within this enclave. The resultant economic detour—the diversion of black dollars away from the off-limits white commercial sector—morphed the thirty-five-square-block area into "Black Wall Street," a dynamic business hub rife with risk-takers and deal makers.

A talented cadre of African American businesspersons and entrepreneurs plied their trades.

Simon Berry masterminded a nickel-a-ride jitney service, a bus line, a boutique hotel, and a charter plane service.

Dr. A.C. Jackson, a physician christened the most able Negro surgeon in America by the Mayo brothers, transcended the color line, servicing both white and "Colored" patients.

John and Loula Williams launched multiple ventures: a theatre, a confectionery, a rooming house, and a garage. Mabel B. Little established a popular beauty salon.

E.W. Woods, the first principal of the all-black Booker T. Washington High School (1913), earned a reputation as "the quintessential Tulsan" for his preeminent leadership in the realm of public education.

These and other Greenwood District architects parlayed Tulsa's Jim Crow regime into an economic advantage. They seized the opportunity to devise a closed market system that defied the myth of African American mediocrity. Greenwood Avenue, the nerve center of the Greenwood District, flourished, drawing favorable comparisons to such celebrated thoroughfares as Beale Street in Memphis and State Street in Chicago.

Over time, fear and jealousy swelled within the white community. African American success, including home, business, and land ownership, precipitated increasing consternation and friction.

African American World War I veterans, having tasted freedom on foreign soil, returned to America with heightened, but all-too-soon-dashed, expectations. Racial oppression continued unabated. Race riots, lynchings, and other atrocities proliferated, unchecked by the justice system and without regard to veteran status.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

HANNIBAL B. JOHNSON, a Harvard Law School graduate, is an author, attorney, consultant and college professor. He writes and lectures about the history of the Greenwood District. His books include: Black Wall Street, Up From the Ashes and Tulsa's Historic Greenwood District. The National Black Theatre Festival selected Johnson's play, Big Mama Speaks—A Tulsa Race Riot Survivor's Story, for its 2011 lineup. Visit HANNIBALBJOHNSON.COM for more information.

A chance encounter between two teenagers lit the fuse that set Greenwood District alight. The alleged assault on a white girl, Sarah Page, by an African American boy, Dick Rowland, triggered unprecedented civil unrest. Propelled by sensational reporting by The Tulsa Tribune, resentment over black economic success, and a racially hostile climate in general, mob rule held sway.

Authorities arrested Rowland and held him in a jail cell atop the courthouse. A burgeoning white mob threatened to lynch him.

African American men vowed to protect Rowland. They marched to the courthouse on two separate occasions.

The groups exchanged words. Scuffles ensued. A gun discharged. Soon, thousands of weapon-wielding white men, some of them deputized by local law enforcement, invaded the Greenwood District.

In fewer than twenty-four hours, people, property, hopes, and dreams vanished. Fires raged. Mobs prevented firefighters from extinguishing the flames.

Property damage ran into the millions. Hundreds of people died. Scores lay injured. Some African Americans fled Tulsa, never to return.

Originally dubbed the 1921 Race Riot, the man-made calamity could more accurately be labeled an assault, as disaster, a pogrom, a holocaust or any number of other ghastly descriptors. This, America's worst race riot and more recently referred to as the Tulsa Race Massacre, would remain a taboo topic for decades.

Against great odds, the Greenwood District pioneers rebuilt the community from the ashes. In 1925, the area hosted the annual conference of Booker T. Washington's National Negro Business League. By 1942, more than 200 black-owned businesses called the Greenwood District home.

In subsequent decades, integration, urban renewal, and economic changes sparked a prodigious decline in the Greenwood District. Despite this recession, Tulsa's African Americans held fast to hope. Preservation, restoration, and reconciliation became community watchwords. Healing history took center stage.

Buoyed by its powerful past, the Greenwood District still lives.

No longer a black entrepreneurial mecca, its new incarnation is that of a business, educational, recreational, cultural, and entertainment hub.

The 1921 Tulsa Race Massacre Centennial Commission (the "Commission"), spearheaded by Oklahoma Senator Kevin Matthews, summoned leaders of the Greenwood Cultural Center, the Greenwood Chamber of Commerce, the John Hope Franklin Center for Reconciliation, and a host of other community collaborators to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the massacre in 2021. The Commission will leverage the rich history of the Greenwood District through projects and programs that promote entrepreneurship and facilitate cultural tourism. Examples abound.

A Commission collaborator, NorthTulsa100, seeks to attract 100 new businesses to North Tulsa, the quadrant of the City that includes the Greenwood District, in time for the 100th anniversary of the Massacre in 2021.

The Commission plans to make significant physical enhancements to the Greenwood District. Imagine a gateway marking the entrance to the community, interactive kiosks strategically located throughout the area, a pathway connecting between the Greenwood Cultural Center and John Hope Franklin Reconciliation Park, and a museum-quality addition to the Greenwood Cultural Center.

The Greenwood District trailblazers turned trials, tribulations, and tragedy into a triumph of the human spirit. Their legacy endures.

Visit Tulsa. While here, visit Tulsa's Historic Greenwood District. Experience history too long untold.

Route 66, The Mother Road:

The Crossroads Between Past, Present, and Future

By Rhys Martin

Tulsa. When most people think of Oklahoma's second-largest city, the first word that comes to mind is oil. Tulsa's roots are, indeed, awash in the stuff. Even today there's a second skyline on the west side of the Arkansas River, a skyline of petroleum production. Between the commercial hub of downtown Tulsa and the towers of the refineries, an overgrown bridge sits between its modern brethren. This bridge was a key influencer in placing Tulsa on the map. The 11th Street Bridge, or the Cyrus Avery Memorial Bridge as it's known today, was a prime factor in determining the path of the most famous road in the world: Route 66.

When adopted Tulsan Cyrus Avery joined the Good Roads Movement and the national Board of Interstate Highways in the 1920s, he pointed to the state-of-the-art concrete arch bridge in Tulsa as the best way for motorists to cross the Arkansas River as they made their way from Chicago to Los Angeles. In 1926, the Mother Road was born...and it came right through the heart of the Oil Capital of the World.

Tulsa has changed a lot in the 90+ years since those 66 highway shields first went up. Of course, so has the old road itself. Both have gone through periods of boom and bust; today they are both enjoying a time of great interest and renewed energy. New businesses and long-time institutions alike have made Historic Route 66 their home.

The traditional journey along the highway goes from east to west. Taking Route 66 through Tulsa in that same way is a journey that represents the life of the highway as a whole. Over the decades, Route 66 served as the way west for hundreds of thousands of travelers and provided the life-blood of commerce that kept communities going.

When you enter the city limits near Catoosa, the bustling activity of downtown is far away. The road is a part of the landscape, unlike the modern interstate which often cuts through its surroundings. As the development of the city thickens, a beautiful Art Deco-inspired gateway hangs over the road as a hearty welcome. Much like it was in the early days, 11th Street is lined with day-to-day businesses, many of which cater to the automobile. These businesses have been around for decades and see the road in its most basic form: the way to get things done.

18. WEST GATEWAY ARCH AND "FLOATING HANGER" ARTWORK BY EILEEN GAY

18 WEST GATEWAY ARCH

When leaving Tulsa by the normal east to west designation, stop at the West Gateway Arch for one of Tulsa's best photo opportunities in front of the mosaic sculpture. You can also find plaques with information about Route 66 and a narrative history of the area, beginning with Indian territory.

Continuing west, evidence of the so-called glory days of Route 66 becomes apparent. Old-school motels such as the Desert Hills stands with its magnificent neon sign; a few blocks away, one of Tulsa's best-known diners stands at the corner of 11th and Yale. Tally's Café opened in 1987, a few years after Route 66 was federally decertified. Tally Alame, an immigrant who came to America in search of a better life, was an early believer in the longevity of the historic highway. His vintage-inspired café continues to enjoy brisk business and is well-known to locals and travelers alike.

Near the University of Tulsa, the signs of renewal grow stronger. Old service stations have been given new life as restaurants and offices. The restored Casa Loma building is now The Campbell Hotel, Jane's Delicatessen, and several other businesses. Mother Road Market on 11th and Lewis offers a dynamic dining experience that taps into 21st-century ideas while honoring the 20th century legacy of Route 66.

In the shadow of the giant Meadow Gold neon sign, the stretch of 11th street between Utica and Peoria is the modern equivalent of the days when tail-fin Cadillacs ruled the road. Long-standing auto dealerships and service stations have been repurposed into restaurants, gift shops, art galleries, and more. A peek into the logbook at Buck Atom's Cosmic Curios shows visitors from across the country and around the world. They all came to Tulsa on the Main Street of America to gain a greater understanding of what this country is all about.

When the skyscrapers of downtown Tulsa are in your rear-view mirror, you'll find yourself at the historic bridge that brought Route 66 to Tulsa nearly a century ago. On the banks of the Arkansas River, a bronze sculpture represents a collision between the new and the old; although these statues represent the early oil field workers and Model T's, the same concept applies to the Route 66 of today. The Route 66 Experience, a state-of-the-art interpretive center that will celebrate the entire 2,448 miles of the road, is planned for the hillside opposite the sculpture in the coming years. This is the place where East Meets West.

In West Tulsa, the working nature of Highway 66 comes back into focus. Tourist attractions like Route 66 Village (which showcases the mammoth Frisco 4500 locomotive) blend with the commerce that shows that people live and work here. The dining room at Ollie's Station restaurant is lined with active model railways and the gateway that marks the western edge of Tulsa includes a mosaic sculpture that pays tribute to the city's transportation history.

Whether you're visiting Tulsa for a day or staying much longer, Route 66 serves as the crossroads between the past, the present, and the future. Cecil Brooks, the late proprietor of the former Brookshire Motel, had a philosophy: I live by the side of the road and I am a friend to man. Today's Route 66 in Tulsa operates under the same philosophy and ensures that our legacy will stretch beyond the horizon.

MOTHER ROAD MARKET WILL HELP REINVIGORATE HISTORIC ROUTE 66.

Mother Road Market: Tulsa's First Food Hall

Twenty innovative concepts. One vibrant food hall.

Get your kicks on Route 66 at Mother Road Market, a nonprofit development of the Lobeck Taylor Family Foundation. Housed at 11th Street and South Lewis Avenue in the historic 1939 Scrivner-Stevens Grocery building, Mother Road Market is a vibrant community space allowing Tulsans and tourists alike to eat, sip, shop and enjoy some of Tulsa's favorite restaurants, as well as brand new food concepts, all under one roof. Customers can also browse special Oklahoma-made packaged products, household goods and swag items in the Kitchen 66 General Store. Farmer's Market enthusiasts don't have to wait until Saturday anymore - the Farm Stand, operated by the Tulsa Farmer's Market, offers Oklahoma-grown, farm-to-table produce, dairy and meat selections. Mother Road Market features a curated collection of over 20 restaurant and retail concepts in over 26,000 square feet of community space. It also houses a full-service bar - The WEL Bar - and a state-of-the-art demonstration kitchen for cooking classes and pop-ups, an expansive back patio with outdoor seating and entertainment options, a Route 66-themed mini golf course, and more. Food entrepreneurs have the opportunity to take advantage of the "small shop" model to test their latest concepts without the financial investment of opening a full-scale restaurant. Kitchen 66, Tulsa's food incubator and nonprofit program of LTFF, is also housed within Mother Road Market, boasting 2,800 square feet of rentable commercial kitchen space. Kitchen 66 has served over 100 food entrepreneurs, hailing from over 10 different countries, with over 50% of businesses being women-owned.

What is Art Deco?

Tulsans like to brag about their unique architectural style.

Tulsa has one of the largest concentrations of Art Deco architecture in the U.S., behind only New York and Miami. But what is Art Deco, and why are we so proud of it?

Art Deco is a decorative art style of the 1920s and '30s characterized by precise and boldly delineated geometric shapes and strong colors. The timing of the style was perfect for Tulsa, then known as the "Oil Capital of the World." Tulsa was experiencing unprecedented growth, and oil barons had money to invest. Thankfully for today's Tulsans and the many visitors we welcome into the community, those oil tycoons built skyscrapers that embodied the zigzag, streamlined style of Art Deco.

Our Art Deco legacy is most concentrated in downtown Tulsa, but examples of it can be found across the city in schools, churches, theaters, private homes and office buildings. For a list of Art Deco buildings, visit tulsapreservationcommission.org

TOURS OF TULSA

TOURSOFTULSA.COM

Walk over and under the streets of downtown Tulsa through buildings built in Tulsa's oil boom days. Tulsa Tours offers an hour-long Art Deco tunnel tour rich with history and full of many stories of the "Oil Capital of the World" days in Tulsa.

Tulsa Tours can customize an itinerary specifically for you and your group with a guided step-on tour for the length of time you are interested in touring.

The tour will show you the skyscrapers of downtown Tulsa, built by oilmen who left their imprint across time with these buildings. You'll hear the story of the Greenwood District and "Black Wall Street."

You'll see downtown churches built between 1914 and 1929 when oil and faith funded monuments of prayer that are still vital today. See the "Black Gold Row" blocks of mansions built by the oilmen in the early 1920's.

Hear the hidden secrets that bring Tulsa to life!

TULSA FOUNDATION FOR ARCHITECTURE

TULSAARCHITECTURE.ORG

Tulsa Foundation for Architecture offers monthly walking tours highlighting some of downtown Tulsa's architectural treasures. Docents point out features of unique buildings and offer historical perspectives. Each Second Saturday tour is different, but will typically include a visit to a lobby, a tunnel, or maybe even an oil baron's penthouse! On any given tour, you might see beautiful examples of Art Deco, Beaux Arts, Gothic Revival and Mid-Century Modern buildings.

TFA can also provide personalized architecture tours for conferences, or any group of ten or more people. We can customize a tour for your group lasting half a day, or just an hour. You can request a special theme, or TFA will be glad to suggest one of our popular tours to fit your schedule, budget, and transportation requirements. Our most popular tours include MidCentury Modern, Tulsa Art Deco, Oil Barons & Architecture, and Tulsa Underground Tunnel Tour.

Email tours@tulsaarchitecture.org for more information or to book a tour.

TULSA HISTORICAL SOCIETY & MUSEUM

Preserving our past.

Located in the historic Sam Travis mansion, the TULSA HISTORICAL SOCIETY & MUSEUM has eight rotating exhibit galleries featuring stories from Tulsa's past. The museum's collection is wide ranging and includes over 200,000 photographs, books, maps, historical costumes, architectural elements, and fine and decorative arts. In addition, the museum's Vintage Garden invites visitors to stroll among the flowers, trees and historical Tulsa artifacts.
